

Package Safety During COVID-19

We're closely following expert guidance during this crisis, and what we've learned so far is that the risk of COVID-19 transmission through handling packages is very low.

Our shipping carrier, USPS, is also taking safety and hygiene precautions very seriously and has stated that per the CDC, the WHO, and the Surgeon General, there is currently no evidence that COVID-19 is being spread through the mail. Again, the extended shipping and handling timeline from buyer to seller or vice versa indicates very low risk.

While we believe the risk of transmission via packages to be very low, out of an abundance of caution, we recommend taking the personal precautionary measures that feel right to you, including practicing good hygiene after handling packages.
